

ABSTRACT

A method for ensuring that a program using dynamic binding and recursion is free from unbounded recursion is provided, together with a method for automatically constructing a set of mathematical theorems that are all true
5 theorems if the program is indeed free from unbounded recursion. In a preferred embodiment, a computer program generates the set of theorems automatically from information in the program and the same or another computer program attempts to prove the theorems, with or without human assistance.

1004424 030502
20000424001